Just an hour ago I didn't know her name
 G7                                          C
A couple of drinks and we naturally struck up a flame
                   F                        C
It wasn't love but then it was plain to see
       G7                                    C
That we were two strangers that were matched perfectly

                     F                    C
I signed on the line for room 109 at the desk
 G7                              C
I told the man that all we needed was rest
                     F                    C
He said to me as he slipped a key in my hand
      G7                             C
That's quite alright Mr. Smith I understand

                     F
Motel matches that burn in the night
C                  F
Motel matches are so easy to light
C               F                          G7
Just a spark of desire and the fire always catches

C                    F
Motel matches we're two of a kind
C                        F
We know tomorrow they'll wake up and find
C                                      F                      G7
We'll be gone with the dawn and they'll come to sweep out the ashes
         C
Of motel matches

                     F                  C
I close the door and she headed for the car
    G7                                      C
Warm tangled sheets were all that left of our fire
                      F                     C
I said with a grin to do this again would be nice
      G7                                    C
But we both knew that a match can never burn twice
