Any Old Wind That Blows-Johnny Cash-
Author:Dick Feller

```
C
Lord she's restless
     F                                C
Like cotton candy clouds that sail the day
         F                C
Slow and free  and she possesses
  F                                C                 F
A mind that can't resign itself to stay for long with me

     G7                                      F
So I tried and tried to keep her tied and satisfied
               C                F
Until she really needs me  yes I do
    C                                    G7
But when that certain look comes on her face
          F                           C
I can't replace it and she leaves me

        G7                           F
She's a butterfly in mid July who just can't wait to try
             C                    F
Her brand new wings on brand new things
        C                  F                C
And she needs no rhyme or reason  when she goes
    G7                                F
Her mind is on what lies beyond that wall of Blue horizon

    C                 F
I suppose  and heaven knows
          C               G7                C
She'll go sailing off on any old wind that blows
        F               C
Yes she will  yes she will
                        G7                C
She'll go sailing off on any old wind that blows

I know she needs me
         F                      C
About as much as I need someone else
        F                    C
Which I don't   and if need be
  F                                  C
I swear someday I'll up and leave myself

        F      G7
Which I won't  even If she loved another man
         F                     C
I'd understand it more than I do

Umh  umh  umh  but I know the only reason
             G7                           C
That she ever has for leaving is she wants to
