Anybody's Girl-Hank Thompson
Author:Billy Gray and Hank Thompson

```
G
Where there's dim lights and there's liquor
        D7
They'll find you each night
                                              G
The jukebox will be playing your favorite song tonight
                                               C
You're the loneliest fool that's living in your make believe world
         D7                                  G
You're a honky tonk sweetheart and anybody's girl

                                            D7
Though you chose the life that leads you to sorrow and shame
                                                 G
Each shoulder that you cry on you swear that I'm to blame
                                         C
You gave up the one that loved you to live in your sorted world
         D7                                  G
You're a honky tonk sweetheart and anybody's girl

                                          D7
You can't say I didn't love you as you're crying in your beer
                                                G
You drink to every heartache and wish that I was near
                                        C
With each drink your passion surges and starts your head to whirl
         D7                                  G
You're a honky tonk sweetheart and anybody's girl

                                       D7
I don't understand your feelings but emotions are strange things
                                                      G
Why you chose the life your leading and gave up your wedding ring
                                         C
You flaunt your charms and beauty and toss your pretty curls
         D7                                  G
You're a honky tonk sweetheart and anybody's girl

         D7                                  G
You're a honky tonk sweetheart and anybody's girl
```