Between the Window and the Phone-Wanda Jackson
Author:L.D. Allen and Wanda Jackson

```
C                           G7
Today is a far cry from yesterday
                                  C
For yesterday the love was mine I need today
                                 F
I've walked on many miles since you've been gone
    G7                                C
Somewhere between the window and the phone

                                      F
Somewhere between the window and the phone
       G7                           C
You'll find me waiting here all alone
                                  F
I've thought about leaving but I'd go right on grieving
    G7                                C
Somewhere between the window and the phone

                                             G7
If the phone should ring I wonder what I'd say
                                            C
Would I tell you that I love you in the same sweet way
                                  F
If you look through the window I'll be home
    G7                                C
Somewhere between the window and the phone

                                      F
Somewhere between the window and the phone
       G7                           C
You'll find me waiting here all alone
                                  F
I've thought about leaving but I'd go right on grieving
    G7                                C
Somewhere between the window and the phone
```