I'd Still Want You-and Author: Hank Williams

```
G
I could shame you till you hide your face

And drag you right down in disgrace
                      D7
But what good would it do
                     G
I know I'd still want you

I could tell the world you're doing wrong

That I was stringing you along
                   D7
And if it all were true
                     G
I know I'd still want you

    C
The world with me might sympathize
G
When I got through with all my lies
                   D7
But I'd be just as blue
                                G
Cause my heart would still want you
D7     G
Cry oh lord

I could tell my friends I threw you down

And slander your name all over town
                      D7
But what good would it do
                     G
I know I'd still want you

If I said I'm happy to be free

The only one I'd fool is me
                  D7
Because it isn't true
                     G
I know I'd still want you

       C
What's the use to say that you're no good
                        G
When I'd crawl back if I could
                   D7
No matter what you do
                     G
I know I'd still want you
D7      G
Cry oh lord

I could smile and say that I don't care

And then go home and pull my hair
                      D7
But what good would it do
                     G
I know I'd still want you

I could say that someone put me wise

And get revenge by telling lies
                   D7
But when I got all through

       C
If the things I said was to break your heart
                                  G
I'd be the first to take your part
                                D7
Cause if all these lies were true
                          G
I know I'd still want you
D7     G
Cry oh lord
