G                   D7                 G
Neath your feet you feel the world is shaking
         Em            C                    G
And your dreams slowly sifting through your hand
                           D7          G
But there's a place you'll never be forsaken
      Em         G              D7             G
I'm a warm fire burning not a candle in the wind

               D7           G
Life can be a silver river winding
         Em          C                   G
With the dark side awaiting round the bend
                         D7     G
But for you a light is always shining
            Em         G             D7             G
Cause I'm a warm fire burning not a candle in the wind

            C                  D7                  G
And I'll be waiting here with arms that ache to hold you
     C              G                   D7
Till forever turns around and starts again
            G         D7                 G
Should you need someone who'll never harm you
      Em   C    G              D7             G
I'm a warm fire burning not a candle in the wind
