G       C       G                C                    G
Just outside my window there's a sound that I can't stand
               C       G                                 D7
The cold night rain is falling and the crying lonesome wind
     G                          C                    G
It's just telling me you're gone and he's with you now tonight
      C                     G           C      D7          G
But I still love you more in memory than he can holding you tight

                      C        G         C           G
There were times when you were happy but just for a while
               C       G                              D7
Then a hunger for his love came and took away your smile
      G                            C              G
While you're in his arms you'll be in my dreams tonight
      C                     G           C      D7          G
But I still love you more in memory than he can holding you tight

                C                              G
You know I love you and I know how hard you try
                                              D7
But there's a part of you I never could satisfy
       G                                      C               G
So I'm losing your sweet love oh just a little more each night
      C                     G           C      D7          G
But I still love you more in memory than he can holding you tight

      C                     G           C      D7          G
But I still love you more in memory than he can holding you tight
