```
G                           C                  G
You threw the roses that I brought you on the floor
              D7                          G
The tear drops burned as I walked out the door
                              G7                  C
Then came the anger then the stranger then the wine
            G            D7                G
That was the first time I stepped over the line

                       C             G
Living together yet a million miles apart
             D7                            G
My conscience hurt  but not as much as my heart
                           G7                C
Always searching just for someone who'd be kind
          G       D7               G
Over and over  I stepped over the line

         D7
Then one night I found an angel
      C                                G
And I knew at last my heartaches were through
              D7
And that's the night I made my mind up
          A7                D7
To say good-bye forever  to you

G                           C                G
My joy grows deeper with my new love day by day
           D7                         G
That other world seems so far far away
                                 G7                        C
The night I found her I found contentment and peace of mind
              G           D7                G
And that's the last time I stepped over the line
