I Was The First One-Hank Thompson
Author:Orville Proctor

```
G                                C
I was the first to chose her to make her mine
D7                                    G
I was the first to lose her be left behind
                                 C
I was the first she cried to harsh words I spoke
D7                                          G
I was the first she lied to first heart she broke

C                                     G
If she seems so warm and tender the way she kisses now
A7                                  D7
Then you might remember I was the one who taught her how
          G                         C
I was the first one to show her those stars above
D7                                        G
I was the first to know her to know her love
