If Loving You Means Anything-Billy Walker
Author:Jerry Chesnut and Dale Ward

```
C     G                D7               C   G
Yes I love you if just loving you means any-thing

                          C                G
I don't blame you for not trusting me just yet
                                             D7
Someone's hurt you and you're not willing to forget
G                          G7               C
Somethings happened in the past that I can never change
      G                D7               C   G
But I love you if just loving you means any-thing

                         C                   G
What has happened in the past that makes you so afraid
                                        D7
Will you judge the world by only one mistake you've made
     G                G7                  C
Will you ever walk in sunlight that only love can bring
      G                D7               C   G
For I love you if just loving you means any-thing

        D7                      G
I can't offer a bed of roses I only hope you know
     A7                         D7
That wherever you find roses a thorn is bound to grow
G                                    C
I'm just saying that I love you and it won't ever change
      G                D7               C   G
And I love you if just loving you means any-thing
C     G                D7               C   G
Yes I love you if just loving you means any-thing
```