     C
Every night at nine o'clock

And her chariot is the cross town bus
                          G
That stops right down the block

She's home again

And her scepter is a wine glass
       A7              D7
And this bar stool is her throne

       G       C    G
And the jesters flock around her

And see which one will take

The Queen Of the Silver Dollar home

Her royal gown is a satin dress
That's stained and slightly torn
       D7
And her sparkling jewels are rhinestones
                                G
And her shoes are scuffed and worn

        G
From the many roads she's traveled
And the wondrous sites she's seen
     D7
And I watch her and I pray
            G
God save the Queen
