Same Old Story-Hank Williams Jr.
Author:Lamar Morris, Warren Keith, Hank Williams Jr.

```
G                          Am
Hey there lonely girl can I sit with you
         D7                                G
I've just got to find someone to tell my story to
                                          Am
You've heard it all before now here it is once more
          D7                               G
And please kiss away my tears when I am through

                                    C
It's just the same old story once again
                        F             D7
With a sweet beginning and a bitter end
  G                                 C
A love affair that didn't turn out right
        D7                                  G
And the world has one more broken heart tonight

                                             Am
Would you like to dance oh you know it's been a long time
          D7                          G
Since I've had a woman satisfy my urge
                                                  Am
But you know it never works a false love won't take away hurt
        D7                                     G
But just pretend I'm him and I'll pretend you're her

Repeat #2

        D7                                  G
And the world has one more broken heart tonight
```