Author:Wayne P. Walker and Irene Stanton

```
C                              G7
You were no stranger when he introduced you to me
        F                                C
But you pretended not to know me sweetheart
                              Am          G7
Though I tried hard not to cry I found a teardrop in my eye
         F              G7          C
When you walked off my world fell apart

             F                                  C           Am
What can you say when your lover becomes a stranger to you
              F                          D7              G7
Just hope and pray you recover that sweet love you knew
C                              Am              G7
So if you ever change your mind I won't be hard to find
F                    G7          C
Stranger you're no stranger to me
```

Repeat #2

```
F                    G7          C
Stranger you're no stranger to me
```
