The DJ Cried-Ernest Ashworth
Author:Joyce Allsup

```
C                              F
Today
I gave my record to the DJ
C                                      G7
In
my car on my way home it started to play
  C                             C7               F
It
told how much I love you and how your love had died
                 C             G7    C
And
before it got started good  the DJ cried
  F              C      G7        C
It takes a sad sad song to make a DJ cry
       F              C                    G7
But
the misery he heard from me broke him up inside
 C                                    C7             F
I
guess he couldn't stand the way the way I seemed to die
                     C            G7          C
Just think how I was hurting if it made the DJ cry
                                     F
The words of the song were just to you
C                                     G7
I
let you know I never did get over you
    C                                 C7        F
Each
word came out so broken just the way I felt inside
                       C             G7          C
And
I knew I would get through to you when the DJ cried

Repeat
#2
```