C                                  C7                F
The neighbors keep calling all the time since you've gone
            C          D7          G7
Complaining a party that last until dawn
            C                  C7            F
But how can I tell them that I'm afraid of the dark
                 C     G7           C
And memories that call  a new broken heart

                F                               C
I fill up their glasses make them all feel at home
                  G7                              C
I'm the life of the party  till the last one is gone
                       F                                  C
That's the time that I'm dreading when they've all said goodbye
                       G7          F              C
Then the life of the party  will break down and cry

                F                               C
I fill up their glasses make them all feel at home
                  G7                              C
I'm the life of the party  till the last one is gone
                       F                                  C
That's the time that I'm dreading when they've all said goodbye
                       G7          F              C
Then the life of the party  will break down and cry
