You've Turned to a Stranger-Wanda Jackson
Author:Jack Rhodes and Freddy Franks

```
C                              F              C
The nights make you lonely   so you want to roam
                                           G7
You're no longer happy   with me or your home
   C                           F              C
You search for excitement   content used to grow
                                    G7        C
You've turned to a stranger  that I hardly know

    F                                C
The flashing of the neon and the songs that they play
                                              G7
The gay crowd and the laughter have lured you away
    C                           F                 C
Once you wanted be with you everywhere that you go
                                         G7        C
But you've turned to a stranger that I hardly know

                       F                C
I can't wash the pain from my tortured mind
                                                              G7
With the gay crowd and the music and the bright light that shine
   C
                   F                           C
If this makes you happy I don't blame you if you go
                                   G7          C
You've turned to a stranger that I hardly know

    F
                        C
The glamor of the night life can't lure me away
                                           G7
I'd rather sit waiting and long for the day
      C                        F              C
You'll return with your love that's faded so slow
                             G7        C
No longer a stranger that I hardly know
```