```
G                    C
Tears start falling I can hardly see
D7                   G
My heart's breaking for old lonesome me
                       G7           C
I tell myself I'll be alright and nothing's really wrong
    D7   G    C          G         C      D7     G
But just then about that time your memory comes along

                                        C
Each day I tell myself the hurtin's hurtin' less and less
D7                                      G
And I should be happy that you're gone
                     G7                 C
But time and time again I feel so lonely and I guess
       D7                               G
That's the time your memory comes along

Repeat #1   And now my tears…

Each day I tell myself to go and find somebody new
D7                                 G
To replace the love I loved so long
                      G7              C
But when I'm holding someone else instead of holding you
     D7                                 G
Well that's the time your memory comes along

Repeat #1 And now my tears…

D7   G    C          G         C      D7     G
Just then about that time your memory comes along
